

Tech Electronics

St. Louis, Missouri

Building Control System and Scheduled Service

Tech Electronics is St. Louis' largest independent provider of commercial communications systems for business, industry, healthcare, and education. While planning the design of their new facility, Tech saw the need for a complete building automation control system. Following review of several companies, Tech selected CTS to design and install their new system. The system provides comfort for occupants and desirable energy savings.

To ensure ongoing optimum performance of the system, Tech Electronics has contracted with CTS for scheduled automation system inspections. Routine hardware and software inspections by CTS technicians provide an opportunity to identify and correct any discrepancies in system programming that may occur. The service agreement also provides for remote access to the system. CTS also performs system backups which are stored off site.

The ongoing service agreement provides Tech Electronics with peace of mind knowing that their building automation system is being checked and serviced to ensure that comfort and energy savings are maintained without interruption.